

Disability and the Equality Act 2010

What you need to know and do

Wednesday 29 September 2010

London Metropolitan Archives, London

Background

In April 2010 the Equality Act received Royal Assent. The Act will come into force in October 2010 replacing the Disability Discrimination Act (DDA). The Equality Act creates a piece of anti-discrimination legislation across eight 'protected characteristics', including disability. It brings in a number of significant changes with reference to new forms of protection for disabled people and the strengthening of the existing duty to make reasonable adjustments.

Aims

This fourth seminar in London has now been added to the series of briefing seminars for staff working in the learning and skills sector organised by NIACE and Skill. The aim of each of the briefing seminars is to examine the Equality Act and what its implementation will mean in practice for learning and skills providers, with particular reference to disabled learners and carers who are learners.

These seminars will help you:

- review current practice against the new requirements of the Act with particular reference to disability
- meet the Ofsted grade in equality and diversity (a limiting grading factor in the Ofsted framework)

- meet the new legal requirements on reasonable adjustments and accessible information
- understand the Act in terms of positive action and positive discrimination.

These seminars will provide the opportunity to discuss through case studies, ways in which provider policies and systems can avoid indirect discrimination and strengthen duties to make reasonable adjustments for disabled learners.

Audience

These seminars will be of particular interest to staff working in Adult and Community Education Services; Further Education Colleges; Workbased Learning and voluntary sector organisations that provide education and training:

- Senior managers
- Staff with an Equality and Diversity Role
- Governors
- Student Services staff
- Lecturers and teaching staff.

NIACE, the National Institute of Adult Continuing Education, was founded in 1921. The National Institute seeks to secure an education system responsive to the diversity of adults' needs and aspirations as learners, and in particular to those who benefited least from initial education. It is our belief that a system fit for adults of all ages and in all their complexity will work better for all learners.

The National Institute is active in many areas - in research, development, publishing, seminars, conferences and training courses, and has an active individual membership.
